

Alpha Omega First Last

We have another trinity doctrinal deception put into the KJV Bible. I can do nothing but give YHWH praise for giving us this knowledge that greatly increases our understanding. The protestant reformers were Trinitarians, they were Catholics and translated the Latin/Texas Receptus, Byzantine Majority, Alexandrian into English and other languages and in doing the translations they changed words and added complete text that were not there in the original manuscripts to prove their doctrine of a three person God.

Here we have Revelation 1:11 the text 'I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and which is NOT in the manuscripts and is ADDED text to prove trinity this was added to the TR in around the 9th century and thus made it in the KJV.

As one looks at who is speaking in the 'REAL' true text you will find YHWH (God) is the ONLY Alpha and Omega in the Bible.

I was under this deception for a long time thinking Yahusha was the Aleph/Tav Alpha/Omega of scripture but it is YHWH our Elohaym and Father that is beginning and end, the alpha and omega, first and last, which is, which was and which is to come.

The oldest manuscripts DO contain the book of Revelation. These include Aleph (codex Sinaiticus), A (codex Alexandrinus) and C (codex Ephraemi).

B (codex Vaticanus) is missing the book of Revelation as well as the first forty-five chapters of Genesis as BugParadise reports.

None of these manuscripts contain the reference to the Alpha and Omega in Revelation 1:11.

However, at the beginning of the ninth century the style of writing changed to a script of smaller letters in a running hand called miniscules. This style was popular as copying could be done faster and cheaper and the number of miniscule manuscripts outnumber the uncials by more than ten to one. The miniscules which follow the text of Andreas of Caesarea's commentary on Revelation do contain the reference to the Alpha and Omega in Revelation 1:11.

How did this get into the KJV? When Erasmus was collating the Greek text of the Bible in 1516 he had considerable difficulty in obtaining a copy of Revelation. It was only through Johannes Reuchlin that he finally managed to obtain the incomplete twelfth-century manuscript that he published in his Nouum Instrumentum. Reuchlin himself had borrowed the Kommentartext to the commentary of Andreas of Caesarea from the Dominican monastery in Basel. The KJV was primarily based on the text Erasmus had collated.

As the text containing Alpha and Omega in Revelation 1:11 has no uncial support or any manuscripts prior to the ninth century it clearly lacks authority and that is why it is not included in most recent translations.
